Natural History of Fire, Food, and Shelter in the Mogollon Highlands

A Field Workshop

Tobias Corwin

with NHI Program Director Bob Ellis

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 2019
8:00AM – 6:00PM

Step into the distant past and learn skills of survival.

This day-long workshop, led by outdoor educator and ancestral living skills instructor Tobias Corwin, will focus on using the lens of Natural History awareness as a gateway to understanding the pre-industrial life-ways of humans in this area.

Participants will learn about the priorities of survival in the Mogollon landscape, then engage through hands on activities and exploration to more deeply connect with the skills of fire making, food gathering, and shelter construction.

Registration Cost: $75 • SPACE IS LIMITED!

For more information, or to register for the workshop, contact the Natural History Institute: (928) 863-3232 • info@naturalhistoryinstitute.org